FRANK P. STONE, Druggist of Norway

FORTY YEARS IN THE SAME STORE

Forty years ago on January 14, Frank P. Stone, "Your Druggist," took possession of the Samuel Crockett drug store in Norway, where he had been a clerk for two months. The new proprietor established an advanced system of merchandizing and accounting, so within a short time the drug store business boomed and continued to make money. Today Mr. Stone occupies the same building with additions and improvements; it is in the Rexall chain and features Stone's ice cream, the homemade kind, that customers drive miles to procure.

Frank was born at Stone's Corner, in Jay, June 4, 1853, and the third generation to be reared on the family homestead. Before plunging in the drug business, he taught school, sold goods on the road and did many things to earn his way through the University of Maine, graduating from the science department in 1877. For a time, he was superintendent of schools in Jay.

Some three years later he found employment with E. H. Gerrish, the Lewiston druggist. Learning that Samuel Crockett's business was offered for sale, he journeyed to Norway and hired out, with the understanding that if mutually agreeable, the new clerk should be Crockett's successor.

Two months to a day the business changed hands. It was in 1889 that young Stone hung out his shingle and the business has prospered without interruption. Mr. Stone is just proud of the fact that he and Fred W. Sanborn, owner of the Norway Advertiser, hold the village record for the longest service in their individual buildings. Only three from the old school are among the traders in active business today. Mr. Stone recalls that when he located in town, Charles F. Ridlon was a clerk for Edwin W. Howe and Eugene N. Swett worked in a shoe store. William C. Leavitt was a tinsmith and hardware dealer, but not in the building he now occupies.

Many old time treasures and antiques have been preserved at the store. In the collection are many books filled with doctors' prescriptions, beginning with No. 1 of the old fashioned remedies compounded by Ai Rowe and covering a period of fifty-nine years to over 77,000 recorded by the present management.

There are also many unfamiliar articles used by the village apothecary when roots, herbs and drugs were ground, steeped, brewed, filtered and compounded for the country doctor's saddle bags. Now these cumbersome utensils may be rust eaten and useless, but they are treasured as relics and frequently used for a window display.

Mr. Stone is a 32nd degree Mason, a Kiwanian, and a pillar in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has the edge on many fellows much younger, and can teach baseball fans the real art of enthusiasm, common in the good old days. The spirit which pepped him up for the University team has retained its vitality and Frank is one of the royal rooters and a large contributor to local sports.

Primarily Mr. Stone is head of things at the store, but cooperation being part of his business policy, he has turned several departments over to his chief clerk, Giles Frost, and assistants, Mrs. Robert Meserve and Margaret McAllister. Frank is the registered pharmacist and handles all prescriptions.

Basket Ball

Mexico 29; Norway 24

The Pintos of Mexico High School copped the game from Norway High at the local gym, Saturday night, by stagging deadly accuracy on the foul line. Norway caged one more floor basket than the visitors, but the Pintos 11 points from free tries beat down the margin.

Speed developed early and both teams went after the pill with only a narrow gap in the scores. At the end of the half each had tallied 14 points. There was clever passing and plenty of excitement for the spectators.

Millett, the Norway center, was high point basket shooter, securing half the total score for his team. Botkas and Gaudette led for Mexico, the latter having an edge by one point on the foul line. Each visitor scored at least two points. The game finished with a display of fireworks that kept the crowd guessing. Summary:

Thanksgiving In London

Dr. A. L. Sikkenga, Formerly of Norway, Tells of the Observance of the Day—By the American Society in London, England

December 16, 1928. My dear Mr. Sanborn: Last year when I was in Norway, I promised to write you a letter, with maybe a little news. Well, things always seem to go along about the same way, and everyday things seem of such little interest that I have neglected to do as I said I would. However, on November 29 we had a fine Thanksgiving Day dinner here and I thought that you might like to hear how a purely United States holiday was celebrated over here. I almost said American holiday, but as Canada, Mexico and other countries come under that head, we like to use the former.

It is said on good authority that there are about 30,000 United States citizens living in London. With this large number, it is easy to understand that they would care to form a society to keep up ideals of home. So on Thanksgiving Day this society called The American Society in London, gave a dinner at one of the large hotels, with all the foods that we associate with the day at home. The turkeys were sent from the States, as was most of the other food on the menu. True, they have turkey here, and sweet potatoes in France, but how good to eat food from home again. The turkeys were carved by the chefs in the large dining room, on a raised platform. Menu:

Maryland Terrapin with Sherry
Shad Roes au Gratin
The Thanksgiving Turkey
New England Stuffing
American Cranberry Sauce
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Corn Fritters Little Sausages
Waldorf Salad
American Mince Pie American Pumpkin Pie
Bombe Vanille Sauce Chocolat
Mignardises
Coffee

After this fine menu was served, we were ready for the toasts, which you can see included those of the King and then the President. At all banquets here no one smokes until after the toast to the King. On this night the President was also given and then the word was given that we could smoke.

His excellency, the U. S. Ambassador, gave a short speech introducing the guest of the evening, the Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin. It was a great honor to us to have our Ambassador, Hon. A. B. Houghton, with us, and even more of one to have the Prime Minister at our dinner.

The speech he gave us was fine. Most pictures of him show him with a pipe, and all cartoons of him have a pipe in it in some way, so it was not much of a surprise to us to have him start out by speaking of tobacco. He said that he was thankful to the United States for the introduction of the weed. He talked on our literature and how he felt it was forming along its own lines which would add to the literature of the world.

After all of the toast, we were able to enjoy a dance which I understand lasted until three in the morning, but Mrs. Sikkenga and I left before that hour.

This is of no interest at all unless you consider the fact that Thanksgiving Day is not an English holiday at all, in fact you can find very few English people that know anything about it. We worked all day the same as any other and then to meet together like this and have good United States food, was a wonderful treat.

Those United States citizens who were here during and before the war were very much interested in the past election of Herbert Hoover. It was over here they feel that he got his first start to the high office that he will soon hold. I heard one man say at the American Club that he was the man that nominated Hoover for the chairmanship of the committee over here that did so much good work for the United States people who found themselves high and dry when war was first declared. Hoover's popularity over here is very great indeed.

Kind regards to all and with the Season's Greeting to you, I am, Sincerely yours, A. Leon Sikkenga, D. O.

Dr. Sikkenga enclosed a programme, which included the menu, programme, list of guests, plan of tables and the list of homeland songs. The program contained 22 pages and the cover, tied with red, white and blue cord and was a fine piece of printing. On the first page in the program was President Coolidge's proclamation for the observance of Thanksgiving Day.

Wildey Encampment No. 21, I. O. O. F. will confer the Patriarchial degree on a class of candidates, Friday evening, Jan. 11th.

Mrs. Stephen B. Cummings entertained the Ladies' Auction Club at her home, Tuesday evening. There were three tables at play.

Norway Church Items

Methodist Episcopal

In spite of the inclemency of the weather last Sunday morning, there was a good congregation present to hear pastor Singleton's message for the New Year, who took for his theme, "Looking Backward and Forward" taking for his text, "For Ye Have Not Passed This Way Heretofore." Ex. 3:4.

The splendid congregation which turned out to the evening Union Service at the Universalist Church were well repaid by the very practical and thought provoking message delivered by pastor Morgan.

Monday evening was a night of business, fun and refreshment, when fifty-two young Epworthians of the Methodist Church met in the Community Hall. The Intermediates met at six-thirty and elected the following officers:

Supt.—Pastor Singleton.
Pres.—Eleanor Roberts.
Vice Pres.—Robert Card.
Secretary—Muriel Meader.
Treasurer—Ruth Cleveland.
Social Committee—Gilbert Roberts, Elizabeth Noyes, Gertrude McKay and Eleanor Aldrich.
Flower Committee—Madalyn Meader.

Immediately following this meeting the seniors had arrived and for fifteen minutes the pastor led in a spirited song service and the younger voices of the junior memers could be heard above those of the seniors.

Miss Wilma Calef, the retiring president of the Senior Epworth League nominated Robert Hosmer and Ona Yates, with the pastor, as a nominating committee to bring in a list of the new officers. The following officers were finally elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. Gladys Aldrich.
1st Vice Pres.—Miss Ona Yates, Devotion.
2nd Vice Pres.—J. W. Singleton, Missionary.
3rd Vice Pres.—Dorothy Wiles, Flowers and Visiting.
4th Vice Pres.—Alberta Hosmer, Recreational.
Secretary—Leonard Dow.
Treasurer—Ismay Aldrich.

Following the business meeting, the two groups of young people were led in recreational games by Miss Hosmer. Mrs. Elmer Aldrich, Florence Card and Grace Calif assisted by three young ladies, served refreshments. It is planned to have these joint socials every month during the winter.

Tuesday evening the Home Missionary Society met with Mrs. Kate Howard in a very interesting meeting. Pictures were shown and stories read, showing the work of the Methodist Church in the Home Mission field. More than fifty dollars have been raised by this society this year for the work in the home field.

Thursday night January 10 at 7:30, in the vestry, the pastor will give the second of the ten addresses on the "Ten Greatest Sayings of Jesus." These services are open to all.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will take for his theme, "The Church a Family."

Sunday evening at the Union Service, Pastor Singleton will take for his topic, "The Storms of Life and Their Advantages."

Wednesday evening the Pillsbury's Flour representative from Portland appeared at the Community Hall and cooked pancakes for the crowd, which filled all tables. The company supplied pancakes butter and maple syrup, while the Church served sausage patties, doughnuts and coffee. A pleasant evening in songs and stunts followed.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid was with Miss Etta Noyes, Friday afternoon. The officers for the year were elected as follows:

Pres.—Mrs. Gertrude Allen.
1st V. Pres.—Miss Etta Noyes.
2nd V. Pres.—Mrs. Carrie Philbrook.
Sec.—Mrs. D. L. Joslin.
Asst. Sec.—Mrs. Wm. Card.
Treas.—Mrs. Carrie Muirhead.

A large crew is working at the DuPont portable mill on Pike Hill, cutting many thousand feet of timber.

S-S-SH! HEY! LISTEN!

Say, lookit! Do you want to know something? Well, listen to this. Down in Ward 8 is a real up-to-date, live-wire Club. Is it? I'll say it is. If you don't think so, you should have seen the members on their last good time, held at the Terhune Cottage on the lake. Say! that was a Lalapalooza of a gathering. If you don't believe it, ask me. Nearly to-thirds of the Club as present and one of the best "feeds" of the season was had.

Every Tuesday evening meetings are held in the Old Club House in Ward 8. This is the same building used by the former Club in Ward 8 (that old gang that many of you, no doubt, recall). Athletics is the general topic discused. Oh, yes! and good times, also.

And that reminds me—February 6 is the date set for the annual rip-roaring good time in celebration of the founding of the Ward 8 Cubs. Plans are already under way for that epoch, and it sure will eclipse anything yet undertaken.

If you have had courage to read this far, please don't lose heart now(because I want to tell you that you are going to get a lot of this stuff every time the Norway Advertiser is printed. And I'm not getting paid by that concern to fill up space, either.

I was planning to write a lot more, but I don't want to cause the Advertiser to have to attach an extra portion to their main section. Therefore I'll limit myself to a list of the officers and a warning to be careful what part of the paper you read next Thursday because you might run into some more of this intelligential reading matter. Here's the list of officers:

Past Senior Cub—Romeo Perry.
Senior Cub—Leslie Gammon.
Junior Cub—Francis Gammon.

PICTURE BILL JUMPS TO HOUSE MANAGER

Friends of William E. DeCroteau of Lynn, Mass., otherwise "Picture Bill" will be interested to learn of his new venture as house manager of the Broadway Theatre in Somerville, Mass. For two years this versatile chap has been district manager of a well known Greater Boston chain of movie houses and resigned recently to accept this important position.

Friend DeCroteau is prepared for the job with theatrical background that took form in barnstorming days as an actor and developed rapidly into something more permanent as publicity man and manager of various enterprises.

He toured with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and has played every male part in the cast. Later he played with a Repertoire company and was for two years engaged at the Castle Square Theatre. He then entered vaudeville and drifted into musical comedy. Later he became identified with pictures, and was proprietor of the Auditorium Theatre in Taunton for two years. He has managed theatres for Poli in Meriden, Conn., and Lewiston, Me. He spent six years with the William P. Gray Circuit, now a part of the Publix chain, in theatres at Norway, South Paris and Oxford, Me.

While in Norway as manager of Rex Theatre, he revolutionized the publicity game, introduced the latest movie releases, became a worthy member of the world famous Weary Club and learned to whittle. Amateur night was one of his favorite stunts, and he catered to the summer camps in this vicinity from which he attracted strong support and cooperation.

CLERKS' BALL NEAR THE ROCKS

There will be no clerks ball in February and Norway Clerk's Association will become a matter of history before many weeks, unless there is more interest shown. That was the sentiment of the faithful few who gathered in the Municipal Court room, Tuesday evening, for the annual meeting. Only eleven persons from a list of eighty-five clerks notified by postal cards were there. They waited thirty minutes beyond the opening time and some pointed remarks added spice to the informal discussion about the whys and wherefores.

President Herbert Butler was for resigning to calling the whole thing off and go out of business. The disposition of some $87 in the bank was a stickler, and re-opened the question for more remarks in favor of dividing up or donating to a worthy cause.

The president and others pointed out that for years only a few clerks have attended meetings, served as officers and on committees and taken the growls after each annual ball. They said if the majority really wanted to continue with the association and promote the dance, it is their move to signify the fact with some personal interest. Otherwise the next meeting called by the president will be in favor of dissolving partnership and disposing of the money. With the lack of interest due to modern conditions, it was the opinion that the ball has passed its usefulness as a novelty that can pay expenses.

As the matter stands there are no plans for the clerk's ball and the meeting was adjourned without date.

The Congos are leading in the race of churches in weekly games at the high school gymnasium.

During the fourth game in the series played Thursday evening, the Congos defeated the Unos 16-13, the Baptists won from the Methodists 20-14.

The games are developing some latent material and promoting good sportsmanship. Players must be under eighteen years and not members of the high school teams. Thus far real contests have developed and runaways for any team.

Interesting Church Service—Meeting of Standard Bearers—Officers Elected—Post Office Moved to New Quarters—Guests at Hotel Malvern.

Rev. Fergus Lea of West Baldwin occupied the M. E. pulpit last Sunday morning in place of Rev. Arthur Callaghan, who was one of the nine New England ministers chosen as a delegate to the World's Service Council held in Chicago. Mr. Lea based his sermon on the text, "I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shal grow as the lily and cast forth his roots as Lebanon." In his sermon to the children, Mr. Lea told them he had always been interested in ships and that one he had seen impressed him greatly on account of its name, which was "I'll Try." There were quite a number of children present despite the rain and bad condition of the roads, who were greatly interested in the sermon given them with the ship's name for the foundation.

There was a large attendance of Standard Bearers on the evening of December 31st, at the home of Mrs. Myron Ridlon. At the close of the business part of the program a genuine good time consisting of games, music and refreshments, was enjoyed. There was no lamenting over the old year or rejoicing over the new. Father Time had treated them well, they were satisfied with the past and hopeful of the future and willing to be good pals with all.

Allen F. Garner, who has been with "mine own people" for two weeks, has returned to Lowell School of Technology His ride from Kezar Falls to Portland by automobile as not without hazard, as from the Falls to Standish the road was very rough and a glare of ice. Several times the car, despite a good driver at the wheel, had acted on its own initiative and turned around on the icy glare. Before reaching the journey's end, they had been able to extend aid to others who were literally stranded, their cars having figuratively speaking, taken the reins between their teeth with disastrous results, but fortunately no casualities.

The mystery concerning the panther or Canadian lynx which has chased the settlers and stock in this vicinity and been fired at several times in the past year or two has been solved. E. S. Bennett and son, Lauren, went out to look after their sheep, Saturday afternoon, about dusk and found a large animal trying to gain entrance to the sheep yard. We are wishing for Helen a quick recovery for she has a nice position in New Jersey in a Boys' School as nurse.

Tuesday, Mrs. A. A. Monroe and Ethel went to Norway to Pomona Grange with Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Hamlin It was rather slippery going, snowy returning, but the good dinner and fine lecture of the afternoon on "Agriculture in Denmark" was well worth the effort. Mrs. Mahlon Rogers entertained her nieces Christine and Celia Gardner one day this past week.

Sunday, Mr. Townsend walked from the Flat in the storm and preached to a congregation of fourteen. Lillian Kimball, the organist, had the courage to be present, too. Many were ill so were unable to attend.

Those taking in the skating party tended the "Crooked River Outing Club" by Dr. E. E. Hubbard at the Flat on Monday night, were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kingman and Donald from here. They had a very enjoyable evening. Skating is one of the finest exercises, only wish we could enjoy more of it.

Our sincere sympathy goes out to our faithful telephone operators, Mrs. Elsie Stevens and sister, Miss Hazel Burnham of Harrison, in their recent trouble and sorrow.

Two very cold mornings, when Friday gave us 6 degrees below and Saturday 12 degrees below. But so far we are having a fine winter.

Sarah Patch Wight died at Hyannis, Nebraska, December 20, 1928, of hardening of the arteries, hastened by influenza. She was born in Otisfield, Maine, on Sept. 10, 1839, the daughter of Benjamin and Rebecca Shedd Wight. She was the twin sister of Jane C. Wardwell, whose death four years ago was felt as a deep loss. Her life was lived in New England until 1897, when she went to the sandhills of Nebraska to reside with her sister, Mrs. Emily Thurston. From a family of two brothers and six sisters, Mrs. Thurston is the only living member.

The "Hyannis, Nebraska, Tribune" speaks of the many fine qualities and deeds of Christian service that endeared "Aunt Sarah" to the Hyannis community. One of the fine achievements of her life was the raising of her nephew, Benny Wight, whom she received when eight days old at the death of his mother. She was a member of the Congregational Church at Hyannis, being received into membership on confession of faith in 1901.

Funeral services were held at the church and burial was in the Hyannis cemetery.

Six nephews of the deceased acted as pall bearers, namely, J. H., B. W., C. W., H. E., C. A., and Irving Thurston. There are many other nephews and nieces in the far west and New England.

"Aunt Sarah" was of the early Pioneer stock and her passing marks another of the early settlers having done their full duty to God, country and friends.

It is no honor to hold the record for jumping at conclusions.

Ample economical electric service enables Maine's smaller centers

To Bid for Industrial Development

ANY community, large or small, can have its share of industrial development if it has the necessary facilities, of which none is more important than ample, economical electric power.

Until the transmission line reached out to them, the industrial growth of small communities was hampered by lack of adequate electric power.

Interconnection of Power Resources Makes this Possible

Central Maine Power Company system now serves with electric power 269 cities, towns and communites. A few years back and not so many years either, many of these towns depended upon local power plants, isolated and inadequate. If any industry desired to locate there it couldn't—the power equipment was already taxed to capacity and its lines were not INTERCONNECTED—they could not draw upon other resources in times of need.

Some of these communities had no service.

Today these communities all interconnected by nearly 800 miles of electric transmission lines, are equipped with a metropolitan quality of electric service.

The widespread distribution of electric power opens a new era of industrial development in which the disadvantages of congestion can be avoided—in which the small town may take an important place in the march of Maine's economic progress, yet preserve its attractive living conditions.

Ask for Data and Suggestions on Industrial Sites

The hundreds of smaller centers of population to which ample, economical electric power is provided by the interconnected lines of the Central Maine Power Company system offer a variety of territorial characteristics. A request to INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT CENTRAL MAINE POWER COMPANY, AUGUSTA, MAINE, will be answered with data and suggestions specifically related to your business. Correspondence is invited.

This advertisement is similar to a series now appearing in national magazines in the interests of bringing new industries to Maine.

Norway and Vicinity

GAME WARDEN ON LOOKOUT

Following up the grey squirrel killing item of last week, Warden William French finds that two of the pet squirrels have been killed. They were shot in open season outside corporation limits by young ambitious hunters

The boys were found and taken before their parents and the matter talked over and adjusted. The boys had no intention of violating the law.

Mr. French's report is as follows:

"After investigating the killing of grey squirrels within or near the village limits of Norway, I am quite sure that the boys that did it, who I have talked with, did not do it with any malicious intent, and that in the future these boys will be more careful.

"As near as I can find out, the few squirrels that were killed, were killed in the open season, and as to whether they were killed within the village limits or not is questionable.

"Parents of small boys can do a great deal to prevent these errors by pointing out to their boys that there is far greater pleasure in seeing the squirrels and birds playing about the homes and parks with the confidence that they will not be harmed by human's, than it is to betray that confidence by killing them."

Complaint of an unattended trap was made to the warden. It seems that Mr. Barker's dog at East Stoneham was confined for several days in a fox trap set near Proctor Pond in Stoneham. The trap is supposed to have been forgotten. It is under investigation.

There is a similar case near Bolster's Mills under investigation. The matter is being looked up by lawyer E. F. Corliss of Bridgton. In the absence of Warden Walker of Oxford, Mr. French is working on it.

Miss Edith Knight, R. N., returned Tuesday to Presque Isle, where she is located after being with her mother for a few weeks, since she fell and injured her hip. Mrs. Della McAllister is caring for Mrs. Knight for the present.

Mrs. Maude Murch entertained the Monday Club at her home, Monday evening, with two tables at bridge.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Waterford Grange, No. 479, P. of H.

Whereas our Heavenly Father has seen fit to take from our midst our beloved Sister Catherine Grover, has gone to her reward after many years in life's harvest field, where she faithfully gleaned from day to day.

Therefore it be resolved that the members of Waterford Grange, No. 479, P. of H., feeling keenly the loss of this sister do in this manner express their sympathy to those who are near and dear by family ties.

Our members grow less as these aged patrons pass away and their example should inspire us to more faithful services and greater activities.

Resolved, that a copy of this letter of love and respect be made a part of our record and be printed in the Norway Advertiser, also a copy be sent to relatives, and

Resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days.

"We know not where his islands left
Their boundless palms in air,
We only know we cannot drift
Beyond his love and care."

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Sent in: "It is hard to convince a wife that heavy underclothes will keep her just as warm as a new fur coat."

Mrs. Fred S. Brown, as a member of the advertising committee of the Woman's Club, was in Tuesday morning to place an ad in this issue for the "Trash and Treasure Sale" to be held Jan. 22, at the Verenis corner store on Main Street. Mrs. Brown was anxious to receive the largest amount of space for the smallest amount of cash and spent considerable time, when satisfactory arrangements were made. Watch for the ad this week and next and help the charity fund.

Inez McAllister wants to locate her wrist watch, lost Saturday night, and is using the Intelligence Column for that purpose. Read the ads early and often. It's worth while.

Shortie Cook stole a cedar rail. Yes, a fence rail. He did it while hunting cuckoo and snipe, last October. The rail was cut in convenient lengths and split.

This he has given to editor Sanborn, who deals it out sparingly to the Wearies. Question: Are the receivers as bad as the thief? We don't know.

Dr. Mitchell of Alton, N. H., which he says is the Switzerland of America, writes thusly:

"This morning I was thinking upon life as I have seen it, and lived it, and I had to laugh at the simplicity—even foolishness—of mankind. What fools we are! The simplicity of a natural life and the joy of it! The complications and falsity of striving for the unattainable! The neglect of the little things while attempting to erect a big thing that will surely collapse and bury us in its ruins!

"And I saw dwarfs living in manmade canyons gloating over their gains, charmed with the clink of gold, intent upon gathering a mass of paper which will shortly be of no value. While outraged virtue and weeping love are desolate. Society! The dirty dollar! Hatred, conceit—the better-than-thou attitude! The sneer accompanying temporary power. Hoover carrying a peace message on a battleship! Middle-age out of a job, old age helpless! Selfishness that defeats itself! Prohibition to make the world safe for bootleggers! What a mess we have made of our opportunities."

George S. Pollard of Chatham, N. J. writes us as follows:

"I send you herein my check to your order for $2.00 in payment of my subscription to the Norway Advertiser for one year, and I have marked your bill as paid. I am sure I will enjoy reading the news of the people at Waterford and nearby, where I have been accustomed to spend part of the summer for over twenty years, and I am sorry that I did not subscribe to your paper some years ago."

Pity the poor Weary who says it's so dry in town that when he mails a letter he has to stick the postage stamp on with a pin.

Cy Perkins, now a telephone lineman, is back to the scenes of his childhood for a time. Not many years ago he was associated with Del Rich in the baseball business and they made a strong pair. Del heaved the ball from the pitcher's box and Cy, crouching behind the plate, generally smothered everything within sprinting distance. This partnership was recognized for miles around for they played in every nook and corner of Oxford County except Slab City. Cy is still "up in the air" but not trying to knock down the center fielder with high ones over second base.

Dr. F. E. Mitchell: "At my hotel in New York, a valued customer had an ingrowing toenail; cut it himself; made a bungle of it. I administered his estate. * * *He had enough and to spare."

Alfred W. Ramsdell: "Fred W. Sanborn wandered from the Weary Club and paid me his semi-annual visit. Don't expect to see him again until after the summer fishing.

FISHING SEASON APPROACHES HOPES OF BIG CATCHES

Dr. Wm. J. Long of Stamford, Ct., begins writing of it in the following way:

Just now I'm feeling especially grateful to you for your invitation to be your guest at Middledam next spring. It rests me just to think of it; but I'm too friendly myself to take you up on the instant. A generous fellow ought to have leisure to change his mind. So I say only, with my Thank You, that if you have the same impulse next May, and if I am then free, as I expect, it ill please me immensely to join you. I am already looking ahead to a Moosehead Sugar Island) trip and plan to go there somehat later than last spring in the expectation of getting better fly fishing during the warmer weather.

Just to match your new rod, a new canoe is being built on a new model, to my specifications. Last spring, you may remember, you had an uneasy half-hour after I refused your offer of a "hitch" at the fishing ground and bucked my way back by paddle. Several times I did not fish where I wanted to go far from camp because it meant too much time and work to say nothing of an element of danger ot depend on the paddle in a rough wind and sea.

Recently I ordered a 20-footer built with sponsons cut off at the stern where wales are about 12 inches apart and with a deep keel under the "square end" for an outboard motor. It's a new model entirely and as practically all the canoe lines are kept I expect it to paddle almost as well as my "old trusty" canoe with sharp stern.

I detest a motor as you konw; but I can't blink the fact that it will enable me to try distant fishing grounds and be a big convenience when I face ten miles and a head wind to camp. At the fishing ground I'll silence the noisy thing, and stow it out of sight and smell, and use the paddle when fly fishing, or a pair of oars when trolling.

My idea, you see, was a kind of three-in-one canoe. I may not get all I expect; but meantime I'm getting all a fisherman's fun of anticipation. What amiable lunatics are fishermen!

When the first bluebird sings in March his heavenly color will remind me to tie a few flies and begin to get other gear together."

A story has leaked out with a moral, that when you attend a whist party make sure of your door when leaving your wraps. As the story goes a Norway woman retiring from a party to go home, went for her wraps in the room where she supposed they had been left. Much to her surprise, instead of the wraps, there stood a man in night apparel. A hasty exit and apologies followed with no end to the gale of laughter by other guests present.

Carroll Greenleaf has found a number plate, 31,614 which is here at the office.

We refrain from giving the name, but here is his New Year's resolution of one who smokes too much, drinks too much coffee, overeats, undersleeps, wastes money in useless extravagances, idles away too much time, attends too many conventions and irritates his family by too much complaining, but he is not going to try to rid himself of these bad habits all at once.

First he is going to go to bed one hour earlier in the evenings. This will help him catch up in his sleep, is one hour less of money spending, coffee drinking, complaining, and in all, one less waking hour for the commission of the habits.

He is quite serious and is planning on eliminating four late party nights out of every month, which will reduce his smoking, give him more sleep, put $10 in the bank and improve his temper.

A young woman, who fell on the ice, Monday, escaped with no greater damage than large rents in her silk hose and sudden righteous indignation. "I was mad clear through. What would you do?" she asked the sport editor. The advice was to smile it off and charge the new stockings to humiliating experience. Pollyanna might have said, "It could be worse."

CO. C DRAMA AND DANCE

Company C is just starting on a drama and dance program to be given for the benefit of the new Norway High School building.

The drama chosen is the "Dead of Night," a royalty play. This is one of Baker's best mystery dramas of the season, and has all the eerieness and spookieness of the "Gorilla."

Because of its character and purpose it will no doubt receive much deserved interest from the public, who are asked to accept this chance to do their bit towards completing the school building, by supporting the drama and dance.

NORWAY WOMAN'S CLUB

The Annual Children's party given by the Norway Woman's Club will take place Tuesday afternoon, January 15, at the Legion Home. There will be a program by some of the boys and girls under the direction of Miss Ruth Flanders and Mrs. Caressa Morgan. A program of games, etc. will follow. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Bernice Greenlaw, Mrs. Nancy Longley Miss Beatrice Stone, Mrs. Edith Easton, Mrs. Mary Kimball and Mrs. Queenie Saleeby. Mothers who have children, will take them, and others are asked to invite a child as her guest for the afternoon, between the ages of 6 and 10. Those taking children are asked to notify Mrs. Longely, that she may know how many to provide for.

The Ways and Means Committee have decided to have a "Trash and Treasure" sale, for the benefit of the Charity Fund, on January 22, at the Verenis Corner store, commencing at 11 o'clock. There will be clothing of all kinds, furniture, dishes, bric-a-brac, etc. "prices within the reach of every one." The members of the club will be solicited for contributions, and any outside friends who have any articles they are willing to donate, they will be appreciated. These articles can be left at the Fred S. Brown store.

What Is A Bargain?
In this community are hundreds of individuals and families on the watch for an advertisement which will offer them what they want at an advantageous price.
Call them bargain-hunters if you like, but thrifty shoppers would be the better designation. Thrift is a commendable trait and merchants should cater to it.
One family wants a new carpet—the need is not urgent. Another family is looking forward to buying dining-room furniture—it may not be for a twelve month.
One man is thinking of buying himself a watch.
One woman a shopping bag; another an umbrella.
All can be made to buy earlier—by advertising. Advertising can make the desire so keen that the bargain is forgotten in the fever for immediate possession.
A Note to Merchants
Stimulate business by the offer of some slow-moving lines at special prices. Brighten up business by advertising some desirable goods at reduced prices. Make advertising banish dull business. Often you can tempt the buyer who is biding his or her time, to buy from you—at a time of your naming.

How Our Farm Bureau Grew.

By Mrs. Edith Charles of Fryeburg Center

Come with me in brief review
O'er the days from then 'till now.
And let's recall the pleasant hours,
As memory will allow.

There came a college man to us,
And brought his wife here, too,
And in this self same hall he told
The way we ought to do.

His name was Raymond Lovejoy,
And he had his lesson well,
How a few stood by and helped him,
Yet the numbers did not swell.

The ladies soon were organized
And an H. D. A. was sent,
It was Anita Nicholson,
Her every nerve was bent.

To make for us a worthwhile thing
And patience no end knew,
She labored on for weeks and months,
With three and four or two.

We studied styles, made dress and hat,
And Betties big and small,
And what the state prescribed for us
Anita did it all.

At last her name was changed to Babb,
But we were not to blame,
She still came on to work with us,
We loved her just the same.

Whoever can forget the day
We met in hall below,
And made the fireless cookers,
Our ability to show.

We tore up tons of paper,
That made our fingers ache,
But when they took our picture,
That surely took the cake.

The news that Martha Sanbarn
Was to be our H. D. A.
Was not so very welcome,
But she came on right away.

Now Martha was a different type,
As girls are apt to be,
And as we went from time to time,
We learned a lot you see.

She was not ever very strong,
Her work it seemed a fight,
And after a lot of sickness,
She decided to turn White.

I do not mean she died, my friends,
Her life took on new vim,
And she and Philip settled down,
We had heard much of him.

Two weddings in our leadership,
What next would be the fate,
Of her who next would take the place,
We'd see at any rate.

When Gladys Page drove in one day,
Tho' our numbers still were small,
We looked her over good and fair,
And liked her one for all.

A few new members on our list,
Encouraged us you bet,
And when new subjects were tried out,
It seemed still better yet.

Why blame a girl for doing what
To her seemed just the thing,
And who could blame the fellow
Who brought the diamond ring?

Miss Page was gone from us,
At least we missed her smiling face,
Now who we'd have was mystery,
To come and take her place.

It might embarrass some who're here,
To give in details keen,
Just how we waited anxiously,
To welcome Miss Bradeen.

She was very little,
And she was so very nice,
Our heart went out to her at once,
She won us in a trice.

Good things are often done we're told,
In packages ever so small,
So we hoped for a leader in this one
That surely would beat them all.

We told her our fate in the marrying ga[me]
Of those who came to our roof,
And at once she assured us to have no con[cern]
For she, for one, was man proof.

What hasn't she done in the time she's been [here]
She has dressed us from head to our fe[et]
Served Square Meals for Health,
Made dainty desserts and then taught us how to eat.

To set a fine table for noteworthy guest,
And just who should serve it and ho[w]
We listened and practiced when she was ar[ound]
But I wonder who does it now.

The chairs that were seated,
The baskets that grew from reed in wink of an eye,
Were only a drop in our sea of work,
I can't name them all if I try.

We welcomed the North Fryeburg ladies year,
And they seemed to like our work, too,
And as number strengthened a little
Our courage of interest grew.

We trust that this meeting will bid fair fo[r]
To have a most wonderful year,
And that Miss Bradeen will lead us as of ol[d]
Let's give her a most hearty cheer.

So pay your two dollars and say not a w[ord]
You'll get your money's worth too.
We'll have a Farm Bureau that's surely w[orth]
while,
And you'll learn a lot that is new.

Wonder what the respected citizen thought—I mean the Conway fellow who blew into the Fruit Store; I mean the one who chuckled and guffawed and poohpoohed and razzed us poor insignificant Fryeburgers uphill and down, because (he-he-he) he said he had (haw-haw-haw) seen our no account snow plow (ho-ho and a couple o' ho's) stuck in the ditch, at the foot of Hapgood Hill. Now sez he; "Why don't you guys get a plow like Conway's, you can't stick one of them birds, so help me Bob, they'll plow right through the side of a house.

"Wal, sub, we did feel sort o' glum and down at the heel after being the victim of this unkind comment from Conway, but when our 'winged baby' comes ramblin' home to roost, under her own motive power, and we learn that the new Conway plow (enroute to Conway via Bridgton) is helplessly stuck in the ditch at the foot of Hapgood Hill, do we cry? Well if we do, it's because we have laughed ourselves into it. We're still wondering what the Conway fellow, the one who grinned at our discomforture, thought, when the truth slowly seeped home. Bet his grin has changed to chagrin long ago, and if, so be it that this young gentleman enters our bailiwick, we shall quietly inform him that Conway's tractor couldn't haul our hat off.

J. McManus Watt has departed for Nova Scotia, where he will get his smack in trim for the lobster pack. Judging from the lilac scented missives which Mr. Watt has been receiving, he would do well to get his smacker in trim before the lobster pack. Young Watt is an able and energetic youth and possesses plenty of 'steam'; which he claims one of his ancestors discovered in a tea-kettle. Perhaps that's what lifts his 'lid' so easily when he passes a fair acquaintance. Eh? Watt?

The saddest thing that has occurred at the Fliver Plant for many moons, and one that nearly brought our flag to half staff, was when a cash merchant gave us a generous order for "Do not ask for Credit" posters, (which were turned out neatly and promptly by the night shift) and very promptly forgot to settle the bill. We dassent send him another bill for fear that he will give us another printing job, reading; "Please do not ask for Cash."

I defy the world to produce anything slipperier than Main Street since the "freeze-up." I never saw anything so smooth, that had so many bumps. Many a youth has made New Year's Resolutions, only to slip on Main Street. Wall Street can't be compared to Main Street for ups and downs. No class distinction there now. All hands trying to break the ice. If you're teetering along and think you're sitting pretty, you are, (and pretty darn soon) but you won't wear out many chairs after you crawl home. Everyone's indignant and joined the standing committee. All the Main Street guys are falling for it. It takes a lot of sand to navigate on this thorofare. You're apt to start skidding at the watering tub and make your final deposit at the bank. Good field for agent for "Pneumatic Knickers for High Kickers" or "Sandpaper Soles for Suburbanites." Hustler could slide around and slip in a lot of cash. The way they rise and fall on Main Shreet reminds me of sister's first cake.

Painfully yours,
C. R. Mills.

She was very little,
And she was so very nice,
Our heart went out to her at once,
She won us in a trice.

Good things are often done we're told,
In packages ever so small,
So we hoped for a leader in this one
That surely would beat them all.

We told her our fate in the marrying game,
Or those who came to our roof,
And at once she assured us to have no concern
For she, for one, was man proof.

What hasn't she done in the time she's been here
She has dressed us from head to our feet,
Served Square Meals for Health,
Made dainty desserts and then taught us just how to eat.

To set a fine table for noteworthy guest,
And just who should serve it and how,
We listened and practiced when she was around
But I wonder who does it now.

The chairs that were seated,
The baskets that grew from reed in the wink of an eye,
Were only a drop in our sea of work,
I can't name them all if I try.

We welcomed the North Fryeburg ladies last year,
And they seemed to like our work, too,
And as number strengthened a little
Our courage of interest grew.

We trust that this meeting will bid fair for us
To have a most wonderful year,
And that Miss Bradeen will lead as of old,
Let's give her a most hearty cheer.

So pay your two dollars and say not a word,
You'll get your money's worth too,
We'll have a Farm Bureau that's surely worth while,
And you'll learn a lot that is new.

Six Point Children

One of the most satisfactory and far-reaching activities on the program of the Maine Public Health Association for 1928 was the checking up of the Six Point Children. This particular method of interesting school children in their own health qualifications and achievements was started last January by the Maine Public Health Association and earned immediate popularity.

A six Point Child is one who measures up to the minimum standards as indicated by a physical inspection of the following six points: vision, hearing, teeth posture, weight and throat. Nearly six thousand grade pupils in the State of Maine qualified last year, a large proportion of this group having had necessary corrections made, in order to receive their six point buttons. This demonstrates that the winning of the button, together with the attractive certificate, signed by Dr. A. O. Thomas, Commissioner of Education, Dr. C. F. Kendall, Commissioner of Health and Mr. Henry Richards, President of the Maine Public Health Association, means much to the boys and girls of Maine, and proves a great incentive to their having needed corrections made.

An analysis of physical inspection of school children shows that most defects are listed under the headings of malnutrition, defective vision, impaired hearing, abnormal throat conditions, nasal obstructions and defective teeth. These defects if not corrected, seriously hamper the child's progress in school and may produce a harmful lasting effect on health later in adult life. If we correct these defects in childhood we are safe-guarding the health of future citizens and the prosperity and well being of our nation. The child in good health is a better pupil. The man or woman in good health is a better citizen.

The plan for interesting pupils in attaining six points of health has been endorsed by Dr. A. O. Thomas, and Dr. Clarence Kendall. The pupils are required to meet the State test on vision and hearing, and must bring to school or to the nurse a certificate from the family physician and dentist as to condition of throat and teeth if there seems to be symptoms of any trouble. Weight and posture are usually checked by nurse or teacher.

The campaign met with such excellent success last year, that it will be continued as an important activity of the M. P. H. A. during 1929, and will have a valuable amendment added. Pupils who bring to school proof of his or her birth registration will receive a blue seal on his six-point certificate. This is an important factor in a great many cases, and is something that Maine in past years has often been too lax about. While the birth registration has but little to do with the child's present health, yet it is essential in a legal way, and very necessary for the compiling of vital statistics, etc. All births should be properly recorded and it is with this end in view that the blue seal will be officially added to the certificate this year, thus actually asking the pupils to qualify in Seven Points for 1929 instead of the original Six.

Franklin County led the State last year in having 992 Six Point children, while York County was second with 768. A healthy child is the State's greatest asset, and twenty years from now Maine will be a stronger commonwealth than it otherwise would be were there on "Six Point Child" program today.

This Maine Public Health Association activity is conducted under the auspices of Mrs. Theresa R. Anderson, Supervising Nurse; the staff nurses; Miss Abbie M. Buck, Child Health Education Director; and several of the affiliated associations.

California Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings of West Paris Make Second Auto Trip to California

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings of Long Beach, Calif., formerly of West Paris, Maine, who left November 6, 1928, for their second trip to California by auto, and in same auto they used in going and returning with before, an Overland of 1919 model that had been 100,000 miles this trip before leaving Maine write of their successful arrival after some difficulties like cold, wind, snow, rain, etc. But perhaps her own vivid description of the trip would be of interest to many as many of their friends in Maine, Massachusetts and California take the Advertiser so I enclose the same.

"I suppose I should try and give you an outline of our trip across but if it is all right with you, I'll make it a very brief one. You'll remember the 6th of November the day we started, which was quite a trying one for us, having to say good-bye to loved ones and at the same time choking back the tears. After this was over, we hurried along to Portland and there our folks made us wait until morning, so in the evening Arthur took us to a show, after which we sat up for election returns, but even though we sat up late, we got quite an early start the next morning. After they seemed to run our car over with food and other things and we lived for days on the food our friends and folks started us off with. Everybody certainly was wonderful to us.

We must have made 250 miles that day even if we did have considerable battery trouble and had to get a new one. It came in raining and hard, so we had to camp at top of Jacob's Ladder in a five room cabin that was just swell, but we paid dear for it, too, and maybe we weren't tired. Afterwards we got tired and exhausted, but thought it was just nature to feel that way after awhile.

The next day was a tough one too, it was snowing when we awoke, but later turned into rain and of course a pinion gear went out on us after only making 56 miles and we stayed in Hudson, N. Y., while the boys repaired it with a broken part that only went a few days and then had to put in a new one.

The morning of the ninth saw us get a late start, but the sun shone so our courage was up again, even if the wind did blow extra hard. We found a camp early, so this day doesn't get us ahead fast as it should, so in the morning we tried for an early start, only to find that the lights wouldn't light and we had to grope around in the dark with only lights from our gas stoves to guide us, so we purchased candles for another such case. This was another windy and cold day but we continued on and passed through Bangor, Penn., the slate city and we noticed that all roofs were of slate in and around here, same as you said of Pawlet, Vt., and we also noted that all hunters carried their license plates on their backs in plain sight and were about 4x6 inches in size or bigger (I didn't take time to measure them). This night we had double bunks, one top of the other and there were no mattresses, but by putting most of the bedding under us, we got through the night O. K.

The 11th we started late again, as hubby saw need to grind one valve. The wind still blowing hard made the many flags we saw today stand out bright and pretty. We saw the home of Hershey cocoa when we passed through Hershey, Pa., and we also went through Harrisburg, which is the capitol, I believe.

We took a few pictures while having our picnic lunch and then went over and climbed mountains for a while, which landed us on the summit of the Blue Mts., to camp. We found it plenty cold here to camp but lived through it and left at 8:45 the next morning, not knowing what troubles and delays were ahead of us, this was another day that we got snow and rain all day long to cheer us all up when that pinion finally got ready to go out again in the Alleghany Mts., and we were trying all along to get a place to drive in and hire it fixed or fix it ourselves before it gave out entirely and were going up hill all the time, in snow and slush and maybe we didn't feel good natured and in love with the Overlands. We waited one place for 2 1-2 hours for the garage man to return and then he wouldn't help us in any way, so we continued until at last we went in for sandwiches and plead with the man for mercy and he let the boys in one of his sheds at last and although nearly freezing, they fixed it and we went on to Greensburg, where we got double rooms, with hot and cold water and nice beds and all could clean up and straighten out our dispositions a little.

A good night's rest and clean bodies gave us courage to leave at 5:15 the next morning and we drove for 50 or 60 miles before breakfast and My! wasn't it a good breakfast. During the day's 254 miles we saw coal mines and oil wells for a change, but didn't miss the showers that must be meant for us—anyway, we left the state of Pennsylvania and think my, what a big state—camped near Columbus, Ohio, in nice cabins.

The fourteenth saw us on the road at seven and we seemed to be traveling through the corn and pig belt, for so much corn and many pigs we never saw before. We got through Indiana to camp near Marshall, Ill., but of course we gained an hour, as we set our watches back at Richmond, Ind.

Our cabin this night was very dirty and I know of lots who would have kicked more than we did; you see we found some fault, but one knows not what he can do and stand until he has to—we had rain this day, which is getting to be an old story.

No lights this next morning so had use for our candles; the man had promised to give us lights early but I suppose the bed felt pretty good and we were only passers-by and he had our money. There was more rain this day but we crossed the Mississippi on the ferry just the same. Rain and a bad acting motor go together so we camped west of St. Louis and Alanson ground all the valves.

Alanson was so tired he finished his car work in the morning and we didn't get on the road until noon, but Shirley and I tried to improve time and wrote quite a bunch of post cards to folks who cant' understand if you don't write, why you didn't. It was cold and misting, but we ventured on to Boonsville, Mo., before we camped again and we were very fortunate in having a garage with our cabin that had a door or else we would have been blown away in the night, due to what we called a cloud-burst and poor me was up most the night with a flashlight watching for a hole to spring open in the roof and I found that a few did, but by moving things around considerably, nothing got wet but my shoe.

It was now the 17th, and when we were already to leave this morning, we were told that we couldn't go west, due to the high water and bridge wash-outs and the flood. We really didn't know what to do as no busses were going either but decided to go as far as we could and then do the next best thing. We found by making quite a long detour and fording some streams that covered the "slab" as they called it there, we got through, but the Blue River had flooded everything around Kansas City, Kan., and all but one bridge was out of commission or out entirely, so we had to wait in line for hours to cross that one bridge due to the amount of traffic, so it was real late when we found a suitable camp ground and this was Saturday night and we had hoped to get here to receive our mail but it wasn't to be, so had to wait over until Monday morning and the roads weren't open either, due to mud and more mud, so it was all right.

We spent a very restful day Sunday, after doing our washing, hunting out the location of the post office, taking baths and putting in a connecting rod bearing and fixing the loose fan pulley, and wasn't it cold!

Monday morning we got the mail before going on and glad that all was well at home and some of our mail didn't get there in time so we miss it as we need to go on even if it did snow again in the night and by plugging all day long through mud to the hub caps, as there is no paved roads in Kansas, we made 123 miles and what a sensation it is to have a trailer on behind, traveling on such slippery mud, and what a pretty car we had at night—could hardly tell what we had on behind, it was so covered with mud.

We saw lots of cattle, so figure it was the beef country. Council Grove, Kan., is quite a nice little town, but the people were too noisy in our camp next door. We told them about it and it made no difference, so we had to lay awake and listen to them until midnight, but in the morning we were up at 3:30 and revenge is sweet at times and say, didn't I sing that morning, and I sang until I remembered this, "Return good for evil."

This morning, which was the 20th, we were traveling at 7 and as I told you what time we arose, you can see that it takes a long time, both night and morning to camp, get our eats and pack up, etc. We made fairly good mileage, traveling over prairie lands and they were raising wheat and corn considerably here. Warren said, "I never saw so much flat country." We had our supper out that night at Dodge City and we had music and everything for a change. After supper, we drove 60 miles farther and on account of the moon and white pavement, we saw loads of rabbits, so had fun taking shots at them on the run and it's no need to say the lucky ones were the rabbits. Camp at Garden City.

The boys got an old spring yesterday, so fixed up our broken one this morning before we started and what do the know—the sun shone and we all acted better.

We crossed the Arkansas River this day and camped at LaJunta, Colo., and all were so tired that our stews curdled on us after having found rotten eggs to spoil our breakfast that day, but such is life on a trans-continental trip.

The sun decided to be with us again on the 22nd, but were driving into snow more and more, but we cheered ourselves up some trying to shoot rabbits that seemed to be so plentiful, and finally one lost its life when Warren got down to business with our 22 revolver. We were successful in getting over Roten Pass, which is 7800 feet up, after plowing through snow and keeping in deep ruts for hours. It was miserably cold, but kept going even after the sun melted enough snow to make travel hazardous. Only got 151 westward today and camped in Springer, N. M., where they told us our snow was mostly back of us.

Got an early start this morning, which was lucky for when the sun began to shine and roads thaw, the soft ruts became impassable. My, what nice sandwiches we had for lunch. I didn't know rabbit could be so good. Left the mud and snow that afternoon and got supper at Sante Fe and looked for mail. This town has the oldest standing house and church in the United States. We were sorry to have to go over Labaja Grade after dark, because Warren and Shirley hadn't seen it before. It is a drop of 1,010 feet in twenty-six turns, going one mile. We camped at Albrequerque, N. M., aftern gaining 219 miles.

It was now the 24th and we were beginning to wonder if we could get to Long Beach for Thanksgiving, but found better roads and had courage again, so we made 309 miles this day, but had to eat out to do it. We had dinner in a Spanish Cafe and Warren soon found out that he didn't like Spanish sauce. It appeared that they always served it on hamburger steaks and now try to ever get him into a Spanish Restaurant again. We had a little difficulty with the trailer wheels but the boys soon righted it and the night found us in Winslow, Arizona, but before going to bed we went down street and had a hot supper.

Here it is the 25th and my wedding anniversary by right, but I can celebrate it on Thanksgiving day, too, as that was the way it was the year I was wed. This was the morning that meant if we went fast enough we'd hit California soil before dark, but we encountered more snow and mud at Flagstaff and had our distributor cap crack, so we didn't get to eat our supper until we got to Kingman, Arizona and there we had a nice supper in a Chinese restaurant.

Shirley asks for a grapefruit and the waiter, a Chinaman, "no-can understand" and he says "Grapefruit after dinner?" and so we said "yes," so he asked from whence we came and we said "Maine." He says, "I guess you different do, me no see before." But we had the grapefruit and decided to drive on to Needles, Calif., before camping and when we got there we failed to raise any of the cabin owners and as it was already midnight, the stars shining bright, and it was warm for a change, being on the desert, we voted to continue as long as the gas lasted, so morning found us oh, so tired and hungry, and even a little chilly, at Amboy, Calif., where we had to wait for a man to get on some clothes and gas up the tank, also got a hot breakfast and pushed on, hoping to reach Long Beach before another sunrise. We didn't have to travel far before we had to go through the California Agricultural Inspection for any fruit, vegetables, cut flowers, or cotton, etc., we knowing about this, were found free and after getting packed together again, were allowed to go on our journey and soon hit the long looked for pavement and joy, what a relief, but there had to be something wrong, so our oil-dip dropped off into the crank case and the next thing we knew we were parked beside the road there on the desert and warm enough for the first time in 21 days, to take off the pan and do some work on the bus that was as tired of the trip as we ourselves and while there, a valve grinding job took place as well. Three hours we slaved here in the sun and sand, but at last we traveled again and we passed through Cajou Pass, the gateway to Southern California, after sun-down and didn't see any of its flowers and green until next day. There was a total eclipse of the moon at midnight, in Long Beach, and we arrived just in time to see it and to get our friends out of bed, but they were more than glad to welcome us back and we were glad to unpack for a stay and call it home. A merry Christmas and happy New Year from us all, Love, Fannie."

Says, "Come or write to 101 Crescent Way, and I will tell you how in a short time the bladder irritation was relieved by Ushiated Buchu (Keller Formula). My case was of long standing and painful. Was bothered 4 or 5 times each night." It acts on bladder as epsom salts do on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory. Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at L. V. Ashton's.

NORWAY VICINITY

"Billy" J. Bickford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Bickford celebrated his fifth birthday recently and during the afternoon entertained twelve of his young friends for a happy hour with games. Lunch was served in the dining room, here there were Christmas decorations and the favors were pretty nut baskets. In the party were Robert Easton, Edward Luck, Madeline Nevers, Peter Jellerson, Winona Edminster, Margaret and Malcolm Brown, Betty and Barbara Bickford and Master Robert Bickford, besides the young host. The children had a very happy afternoon.

Leon Kimball of South Albany was in town, Monday. He said driving a car over icy roads was not easy, but with care, the thing can be done without finding the ditch.

Frederick Marshall Davis of Lewiston has been in town for several days visiting with relatives.

Frank Hobbs has moved his family from the corner of Danforth and Beal Streets to the house on Main Street, formerly occupied by Howard L. Drake.

Some freak weather for the new year. From 10 to 20 below zero, Friday morning changed suddenly to 38 above and heavy rain early Sunday morning. Showers continued during the day, with another downward flop, Monday, that brought on the ice age, the corporation sand-man and creepers.

The bright colored Christmas illuminations have been removed from the tree in Witherell Park and stored away by the Central Maine Power Co., for another year.

WIN FLANDERS RETURNS TO NORWAY

W. J. Flanders, formerly of Norway and Belfast and long connected with the R. P. Hazzard Co., has resigned his position as foreman with that concern and has accepted a position with the Norway Shoe Co., as foreman of the sole leather room. While in Belfast, Mr. Flanders made many friends and was especially popular in dramatic circles, having coached many successful shows for local organizations. Mr. Flanders returns to Norway, recalls his presentation here, a few years ago, of "The Rosary," a play made up of a cast of local talent from Lewiston. The play was well staged and attracted a big house. Mr. Flanders comes here from Augusta.

Some eighteen years ago, Win, as he was called, developed a strong leaning toward dramatics during the meteoric career of Chester "Jack" Oelrich a professional actor, who made Norway his home for some two years. After "Jack" left town, local talent productions were kept alive with young Flanders in the foreground. He staged several melodramatic plays, the most popular being "Along the Missouri," which had a successful run over a circuit in Oxford County. He is a natural showman with an eye for the artistic, and will receive a welcome from the ranks of theatre patrons who recall his home town activities.

Plans are being made by members of Abigail Whitman Chapter, D. A. R., to hold a public card party sometime this month at the home of Mrs. H. F. Andrews.

John P. Judkins, who has been rural mail carrier for the past twenty-seven and a half years, received fine Christmas gifts from his patrons of a fine easy chair, and a large box of fruit, sweets and smokes, as a token of appreciation. During these years he has never had a complaint and the patrons have always found him pleasant and accommodating and this gift was presented as a token of good will. Mr. Judkins was greatly pleased to know that the patrons thought so much of him and he is enjoying his gifts.

Mrs. Bertrand G. McIntire went to Boston, Monday, where she will be the guest of Miss Angie Brackett, while Mr. McIntire is at Springfield, Mass., on business connected with the Federal Land Bank.

Public Men I Have Known

Gen. Wm. K. Kimball; Gen. John J. Perry

Article No. 8 by C. F. Whitman

Gen. William K. Kimball was my ideal of a Clerk of the Courts. He would have been an ideal official in any position he cared to fill. He was of fine personal appearance, erect in bearing, and a polished gentleman of the class to which Senator William P. Frye and Judge Sewall C. Strout belonged.

As stated in a former sketch, he was a patriot, who cared more for the welfare of his country than his party and when the Union was menaced he offered his services to the Government and was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the 12th Me. Infantry, which he had helped to organize and was soon promoted to command it. In the Seige of Port Hudson, he commanded a brigade. After his term of service had expired, he reenlisted. He came home a Brevet Brigadier General and was elected Clerk of the Courts and served six years.

Gen. William K. Kimball was born in Rumford, June 7, 1820, soon after Maine had been admitted into the Union as a state. After an academic course at Gould's in Bethel and one at North Bridgton, he entered the Harvard Law School where he graduated. Upon being admitted to the Bar in this county in 1841, he first settled in the practice of his profession at Dixfield, but soon removed to Canton village, where in 1843 he was elected as a Representative to the Legislature. The next year he was appointed County Attorney and moved to Paris Hill. He had married in 1842, Miss Frances F. Rawson, daughter of Capt. Samuel Rawson, to whose place they went and made their home from 1844 to their deaths. Mrs. Kimball was one of a remarkable family of girls. Two of her sisters were the wives of Members of Congress—Mrs. Arabella, wife of Timothy J. Carter and Mrs. Columbia, wife of Virgil D. Parris, who survived him many years and died at the great age of about 103, with her mental faculties unimpaired. Her mother, Mrs. Arabella Carter Rawson, also a most remarkable lady, died at 97 years of age.

At the close of his term as County Attorney, Kimball was elected Clerk of the Courts and served four years. He sought higher honors and gave Charles W. Walton the oportunity to be a candidate for the office he held, but Walton was defeated—the only one on his ticket.

In 1854 Kimball was nominated at Buckfield at a convention of his party, as a candidate for Representative to Congress. The people at that time were greatly stirred up over Liquor and Slavery. There were three opposition factions to the dominant party, which had made Franklin Pierce of New Hampshire President of the United States. These three factions by delegates at South Paris, after some sharp manipulations, nominated the master of political trickery of that period in the county, Gen. John J. Perry of Oxford.

The district committee of the Free Soilers—one of the factions—wrote to General Kimball to define his position on the Slavery Question and the Repeal of the Missouri Compromise, and in reply he stated that he regarded Slavery as a social, moral and political evil "and its successful abolition in my judgment would be worth almost any price short of the Union itself. The idea of its extension into new territory must be abhorrent to every right-minded and sound-hearted man. Nothing could induce me to give my vote or influence to establish it on a foot of free soil. * * * * I deeply regret the movement that led to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise. * * * * Had I been in Congress, my influence would have been exerted to prevent it."

This reply with its splendid and patriotic sentiments, was suppressed—it was said by Perry's influence—and did not reach the public eye until after the roar of the Rebel guns which had forced down the Stars and Stripes on Fort Sumter, had aroused the North to the peril the Union was in. Had it been known before the election, it is pretty safe to say that John J. Perry would never have represented the people of the Second District of Maine in the Congress of the United States but at the election he won out. At another time, Perry served a second term in Congress, but acquired no prominence there. His noteworthy fame is having been the ablest editor that the Oxford Democrat has had during its nearly one hundred years of existence. He got his title as General from service in the militia before the war.

Had General Kimball been elected instead of General Perry, in 1854, his convictions would have forced him to follow a course similar to that of Senator Hamlin and his career in Congress must have been a brilliant one, for in persuasive ability and charm of manner, he was undoubtedly cut out for the most popular speaker of any Congressman from the Oxford District, from Governor Enoch Lincoln to William P. Frye.

General Kimball never had an office or position that he didn't shine in it. He was undoubtedly the most accomplished Clerk of the Courts that Oxford County ever had. He stayed with his party after his defeat for Congress until after his service in the army. From 1857 to 1861 he was U. S. Marshal for the District of Maine. In 1866, he was elected Clerk of the Courts and was reelected. He died in 1875.

There are some good stories about General Kimball's legal practice, but the best one I know is the following: At one term of the court on Paris Hill, when Judge Walton presided, one Stephen Packard's case was called for trial. He had been prosecuted for some offense of a quite serious character and was under bonds for his appearance and trial at that term. Packard asked the court to assign him counsel as—for some reason—he had none. The Judge asked General Kimball to act for him, but the General demurred, saying that he did not know anything about the case and that he had so little time to prepare for trial he couldn't do the respondent such service as he should, but the Judge insisting, said "Take him out into the library room, General; hear his story, and after we have disposed of the next case, you can come into court and clear him."

Upon then going into the library, the following conversation took place between the General and the Respondent:

Gen. K.: "Steve, are you innocent or guilty?"

Packard: "Guilty as h—l, General."

Gen. K., pointing out of the window towards the White Mts., "Do you see those mountains there, Steve?"

Packard: "You bet I do, General."

Gen. K.: "Then lose no time in putting yourself on the other side of them, and wait till this case is an old story, when I'll have it dismissed, and some of your folks can send for you to come home. Do you understand, Steve?"

Packard: "Beyond a doubt, General."

Gen. K.: "Then scoot. I'll wait here till I see you enter the woods in the old road leading down across the river."

Packard thereupon bolted down stairs and inside of ten minutes was lost to view in the woods. Kimball waited where he was till the other case was disposed of, when he went into the court room and took his seat. Not seeing the respondent with him, the Judge inquired where he was and received this reply: "Your honor, he has left his country for his country's good." An audible merriment was heard among the lawyers and court officers, as the Judge said, "Mr. Clerk, default the bail." This was done, but Kimball had influence enough to save the bondsmen from paying anything and after a time the case was dismissed, when Packard sneaked back home, a wiser, if not a better man.

Memories of School Days With George Eastman of Lovell—How the World's Fair at North Waterford Got Its Start Sixty Years Ago

By Mrs. Ellen M. Davenport

The letter of Mrs. Lydia A. Ells of Berlin, N. H., in your issue of December 28, has brought many memories of days long gone, for I am sure there is no other George Eastman of her description than he of whom she writes.

I think it is this George who attended school at North Waterford so long ago that I wonder how old I am, and as "George" was a year or two older, he is not a very young man.

William E. Pulsifer was our teacher and was a fine bass singer. With George as bass, Arthur Green and Charles Allen, tenors, Mary Hobson and Lois Greene, sopranos, and Kate Hobson and Alice Greene, altos, no school could boast such a double quartette, with the rest of us in the chorus. I am sure George has not forgotten the praise we received.

With George came Aravilda Palmer and her brother, Henry W., and Aristeen Andrews, all from Lovell. An old man living in the village said, "That air George Eastman was a darn good singer and a mighty good arithmeticker."

I sat opposite George in school and one day I must positively bring to our class the solution of a certain example. I wanted to pass a note to George, which read: "Please do this example for me as quick as you can." William E. Pulsifer had an eagle's eye, and how to pass that note across the aisle without being seen was a puzzle, so I dropped it on the floor and "accidentally" dropped a book at the same time. In picking up the book, I looked at George and brushed the note under his foot. He immediately stepped on the note and did not venture to pick it up until the teacher's back was turned.

The solution was returned in much the same way. George was always ready to help us and we all looked upon him as a wizard, and wished for his wonderful power to "do examples."

All those other boys grew restless and many of them travelled far from home. John Manning is a noted physician in Seattle, Arthur Green, Frank Rand, Thos. Green, the Rice boys, have all gone into the Silent Land from which there is no returning.

Another good singer, of whom it was said had a voice like a bell, a wonderful addition to our far-famed music, was Albert M. Horr, now a highly respected citizen of Lowell, Mass., a deacon in the First Congregational Church in that city and who still loves to sing.

Incidentally William E. Pulsifer, our honored teacher, is passing his winters in Honolulu. In a personal letter he said he was sure that "here was the Garden of Eden." On his retirement from the book publishing business in New York City, on his 75th birthday, he was honored with a wonderful tribute to "a Noble Publisher."

But among all these pupils George has stood fast and believed that the place he has filled has been the place for which he was fitted. Would there were more to live among the people who need them and rise as do George's friends, to pay due honor.

One incident I should not forget. In those old school days someone asked where George Eastman was and the answer was this, "Well, he headed for the Rand girls, but he couldn't get by John Green's, he has got his eye on Alice."

In one of the October numbers of the Advertiser was an article concerning the origin of the "World's Fair" held yearly at North Waterford.

In 1869, Tom Green was in Uncle John Rand's store watching the people start for the Norway fair (no automobiles in those days). Tom said to Uncle John, "I don't see why we can't have a fair right here!"

Uncle John, who was a very public spirited man, replied, "Well, we can! What have you got that is worth exhibition?"

"Well, said Tom, "I've got a couple of guinea pigs and a real, live owl."

"Just the thing," said Uncle John. "Now hunt 'round and get some vegetables and some fancy work among the women and I will clean up those two tailor rooms over my store and we will show them what we can do."

And so the first fair of that idea of Tom Green's was started and every year since that October of 1869, a fair has been held, 'till it is now called not "Tom's Fair" but the big "World's Fair." This is the 60th year and Tom was only seventeen years old. Why not celebrate appropriately and as George Eastman was Tom's staunch friend, let him be honored guest, and roar a salute similar to that accorded other great men.

Memories of School Days With George Eastman of Lovell—How the World's Fair at North Waterford Got Its Start Sixty Years Ago

By Mrs. Ellen M. Davenport

The letter of Mrs. Lydia A. Ells of Berlin, N. H., in your issue of December 28, has brought many memories of days long gone, for I am sure there is no other George Eastman of her description than he of whom she writes.

I think it is this George who attended school at North Waterford so long ago that I wonder how old I am, and as "George" was a year or two older, he is not a very young man.

William E. Pulsifer was our teacher and was a fine bass singer. With George as bass, Arthur Green and Charles Allen, tenors, Mary Hobson and Lois Greene, sopranos, and Kate Hobson and Alice Greene, altos, no school could boast such a double quartette, with the rest of us in the chorus. I am sure George has not forgotten the praise we received.

With George came Aravilda Palmer and her brother, Henry W., and Aristeen Andrews, all from Lovell. An old man living in the village said, "That air George Eastman was a darn good singer and a mighty good arithmeticker."

I sat opposite George in school and one day I must positively bring to our class the solution of a certain example. I wanted to pass a note to George, which read: "Please do this example for me as quick as you can." William E. Pulsifer had an eagle's eye, and how to pass that note across the aisle without being seen was a puzzle, so I dropped it on the floor and "accidentally" dropped a book at the same time. In picking up the book, I looked at George and brushed the note under his foot. He immediately stepped on the note and did not venture to pick it up until the teacher's back was turned.

The solution was returned in much the same way. George was always ready to help us and we all looked upon him as a wizard, and wished for his wonderful power to "do examples."

All those other boys grew restless and many of them travelled far from home. John Manning is a noted physician in Seattle, Arthur Green, Frank Rand, Thos. Green, the Rice boys, have all gone into the Silent Land from which there is no returning.

Another good singer, of whom it was said had a voice like a bell, a wonderful addition to our far-famed music, was Albert M. Horr, now a highly respected citizen of Lowell, Mass., a deacon in the First Congregational Church in that city and who still loves to sing.

Incidentally, William E. Pulsifer, our honored teacher, is passing his winters in Honolulu. In a personal letter he said he was sure that "here was the Garden of Eden." On his retirement from the book publishing business in New York City, on his 75th birthday, he was honored with a wonderful tribute to "a Noble Publisher."

But among all these pupils George has stood fast and believed that the place he has filled has been the place for which he was fitted. Would there were more to live among the people who need them and rise as do George's friends, to pay due honor.

One incident I should not forget. In those old school days someone asked where George Eastman was and the answer was this, "Well, he headed for the Rand girls, but he couldn't get by John Green's, he has got his eye on Alice."

In one of the October numbers of the Advertiser was an article concerning the origin of the "World's Fair" held yearly at North Waterford.

In 1869, Tom Green was in Uncle John Rand's store watching the people start for the Norway fair (no automobiles in those days). Tom said to Uncle John, "I don't see why we can't have a fair right here!"

Uncle John, who was a very public spirited man, replied, "Well, we can! What have you got that is worth exhibition?"

"Well, said Tom, "I've got a couple of guinea pigs and a real, live owl."

"Just the thing," said Uncle John. "Now hunt 'round and get some vegetables and some fancy work among the women and I will clean up those two tailor rooms over my store and we will show them what we can do."

And so the first fair of that idea of Tom Green's was started and every year since that October of 1869, a fair has been held, 'till it is now called not "Tom's Fair" but the big "World's Fair." This is the 60th year and Tom was only seventeen years old. Why not celebrate appropriately and as George Eastman was Tom's staunch friend, let him be honored guest, and roar a salute similar to that accorded other great men?

SUMNER

Down Mill Village Way

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grover went to Portland by auto, attended the show and did a little shopping, then went to Mrs. Grover's home at Harrison and returned to Sumner the following afternoon.

In making the situation more home-like Percy Grover has his handsome driving horse here with them this winter and Mr. Allard has a nice cow.

Mr. Allard, Mr. Bailey and Mr. Davis, while waiting for the whistle to blow, are busily engaged at cutting birch upon the Penley lot.

The Chamberlaines, who are living in Lovell Oldham's camp this winter and cutting birch, have a modern radio installed for long evening amusement here in the tall timber.

December 31st there are a few cords of birch in the mill yard at this writing, some of the teams started to haul the first of last week, but on account of scarcity of snow and the ground not being frozen, they had to discontinue for the time.

Lionel Bartlett came home December 21st, Irving and Doris Bartlett left Pascoag, R. I. the same morning, came through Boston to Somerville, Mass., stopping over night with their aunt, Mrs. Jennie Mears; that evening, their aunt, Miss Edna Ray, and Mr. Mayeomber of Newton, drove over in their Daniels car and spent the evening with them. At nine o'clock the next morniug, Mr. and Miss Bartlett boarded the train at Boston for their old home way down in Maine and were met at the station at East Sumner by their brother, Jerry, with his car.

Christmas morning Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grover, Mr. Bailey and Lionel Bartlett took a hike in around Ragged Jack mountain, it being new ground to all except Lionel. The trip was enjoyed by all. Carl Bonney and Ike Doten spent Christmas eve at Bartlett's, not many years back Carl and Irvin were old pals and traveled some.

At about nine o'clock, Thursday evening, Dec. 27, it began raining and continued with a steady downpour until Friday at 2 p. m. leaving the roads in poor condition for sleighing and many are back to the carriage, our R. F. D. for one.

Friday afternoon, Dec. 28, Mrs. Emerson Bartlett, Doris and Irvin, drove over to see their sister, Mrs. Charles Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grover spent Wednesday evening, the 26th, at Mr. and Mrs. Emerson P. Bartlett's.

Lionel Bartlett returned to his work, Thursday, the 27th. Irving and Doris left here Saturday morning, the 29th, so as to resume their duties Monday morning. Irvin in a woolen mill and Doris at housekeeping.

Donald Varney has been ill for several days with the flu.

We had about five inches of snow fall, on New Year's eve, which made a wonderful improvement in traveling conditions as there was a lot of bare ground in the county roads.

Harry Holmes butchered a hog for Linn Farrar, New Year's day. Many of our former residents, who are at this time scattered here and there, keep posted on what is going on back in their old neighborhood by very carefully reading the newsyest of all weekly papers, the Advertiser, will be at a wonder at reading this sentence, as all of them know that Linn has for many years been this community's butcher, having killed around fifty pigs annually, but at this time Linn is used up for an indefinite time with a lame back.

In this column of last week's issue it read that Donald Varney was ill with the flu, but a little later it was learned that his sickness was not of such a serious nature and that he is improving at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover gave a chicken dinner on New Year's day for the members of Mill Village, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Davis and son, Junior; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grover, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bailey and son, Floyd; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Allard.

Howard Grover has put an annex on his camp.

Joseph Bosse began hauling hay, Jan. 2, one load; and two the 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover spent the evening at Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bartlett's, Jan. 2nd; Percy helped Jerry Bartlett butcher, the 3rd.

Jerry Bartlett and sisters, Grace and Gertrude, spent a couple of evenings at Mr. and Mrs. Percy Grover's, recently.

Mr. Chesley and man are hauling wood past here with two teams.

George Spaulding and Floyd Varney were hauling sawdust from the Tebbets mill, Wednesday, the 2nd.

Cecil Keene of Bear Pond took a wild ride, Thursday of last week. Mr. Keene, who has four horses working in the birch woods on the Penley lot for Joseph Bosse in the green woods, met with a bad accident, happening in this way. They eliminated the regular bridle chains, putting hay on a bad ramdown for a change and just as Mr. Keene spoke to his horses, it is said his brother, who was driving the next team, and also belonging to Mr. Keene, said, "Have you anything to say before starting down?" Mr. Keene's answer was that he had not, and over the peak he started and the hay did not hang or help the horses in the least, but it was too late and all that could be done was to play the part of a good soldier and take whatever happened. Nearly to the main road the near fore runner hit a tree, one horse was killed right out while the other was broken up so as to its being killed at once, while very fortunately, Mr. Keene who was thrown about fifteen feet, landed safe and sound, there were four teams all loaded with birch and right at the top of the ramdown all of the teamsters being close at hand, though after assisting to all that could be done, the boys unhitched their horses and went to camp. Mr. Bosse, the contractor, went to Lewiston, Friday morning, to purchase a snub rope to be used upon this hill in the future.

HUNT'S CORNER AND VICINITY

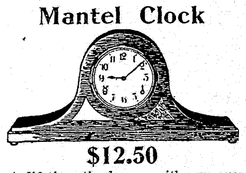

Members of Round Mountain Grange met at their hall, January 5, for an all day meeting. North Waterford Grange was invited to have a joint installation of officers with them. After a social hour and a good dinner, Worthy Master Kimball, our retiring Master, called the meeting to order. After the usual routine of business the officers present of each Grange were installed in a pleasing manner by Roy G. Wardwell, assisted by Sister Florence Bean of New Sharon Grange and Brother Harlan Bumpus. As it was getting late our Lecturer thought it best to postpone her program and enjoy the motion picture which Rev. B. F. Wentworth kindly presented. After which pleasing remarks were made by our visiting members. We hope that each member and officer were inspired to do their best to make the grange meetings interesting and the grange successful the coming new year and where the Order is as small as ours each one is needed. If each will do their part we can have some interesting meetings that will be a benefit to us all.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.
Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.
You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

STOW

Oldin P. Charles Dead—Harriman Sold Horses.

With the passing of Oldin P. Charles, Stow's last veteran of the Civil War has answered his last roll call. He was 85 years old February 11th, a life long resident of Stow and a man universally liked and respected. He was one of the old line Democrats and was well posted on the current topics of the day up until the last two or three years since which time he began to fail. Always a great reader and a man who knew what he was talking about and could tie up some of the best men in an argument. He leaves two sons and two daughters, Otho of Massachusetts, Harry of Fryeburg; Blanche, wife of Charles Lord of Fryeburg, and Bertha, wife of Maurice Eastman of Stow, with whom he made his home and who gave him all the loving care anyone could give since his wife, who was Myra Morrison, died some few years ago. He was an Odd Fellow and Mason. Interment at Stow Corner cemetery. The Odd Fellows' rites were observed at the funeral. He was the last soldier of '61 in this town and there can not be many in any other town.

This correspondent would like to hear from other towns, telling us how many veterans of the Civil War they have.

Herbert Emerson is cutting pine and pulp, which the wind blew down.

Sidney and William Sanborn are plastering a double tenement house at Swan's Falls for the Central Maine Power Co.

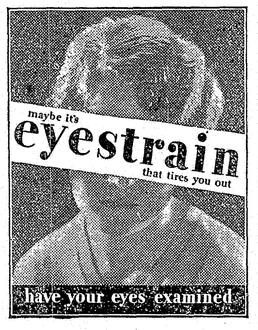

Mrs. B. F. Guptill is sick with pneumonia.

Albert Hurd has gotten his wood up and Seth Harriman sawed it with his machine last week.

School begins again Monday, Dec. 31st.

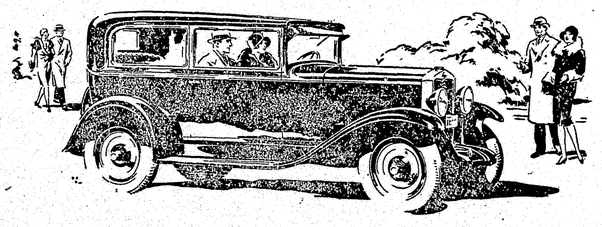

Mrs. Lucinda Fernald is helping care for Mrs Guptill. We don't know what we would do in this neighborhood if it was not for her to call on when we are sick.

Surrenders Charter

Sons of Temperance Vote to Disband On Fortieth Anniversary

Oxford division, No. 23, Sons of Temperance of Oxford, surrendered its charter to the Grand Division of Maine Dec. 31, the vote being taken on Dec. 13 when the organization celebrated its 40th anniversary.

This division was organized Dec. 13, 1888, by E. H. Dolley of Windham with 21 charter members: Rev. George Tewksbury, Martha Peterson, Charles M. Andrews, Marcial L. Cash, D. M. Peterson, Elmer L. Parrott, Alice I. Wilbur, A. M. French, Bertha L. Pendexter, Louisa A. Wood, Fred L. Smith, Albion W. Grant, Mary E. Ellis, Mary A. Ellis, Annie E. Hayes, Evie L. Parrott, Ida B. Hawkes, Sarah J. Booker, Lizzie T. Hayes, George R. Hersey, S. H. T. Hayes. Of these Mrs. Lizzie Hayes retained her membership for the 40 years.

The first worthy patriarch was Elmer L. Parrott and the meetingsss were held in Engine hall for six months when it was decided to rent the Methoodist vestry. The division grew with such rapidity that in four years it was found that the vestry could no longer accomodate them and it was proposed to build a new hall. The committee to raise the funds was George Hazen, Kate Starbird, W. R. Farris, Frank Durrell, George J. Parrott, George C. Houghton. In less than a month the money in shares of $10 each was pledged. The professional and business men of the community, desiring a larger building than the one planned, organized the Oxford Building Association, Inc., and the pledges were turned over to it. In consideration of this the upper hall was to be called Sons of Temperance hall and the division retained the right to lease it in five-year terms as long as they desired to do. Seven shares were taken by the division and the rooms were furnished at an expense of $600.

The money for the furniture, piano, stoves, electric lights, and dishes was raised by a series of fairs, one of which netted $234. Robinson hall was dedicated Feb. 3, 1893 and the Sons of Temperance hall, February 9, '93. In 1895 the division numbered 209 members in good standing, and was accounted the largest division in the State of Maine. The roll shows 524 persons initiated; of these three were lawyers, four doctors, 11 clergymen, about 50 school teachers and nearly all the business men of the village. In 1917-1918 the order maintained a Village Improvement Society which was given up at last on account of war activities.

Besides the regular work of the organization, many charitable objects received aid and entertainments of high order were prepared for each weekly meeting. Better standards of society was the outgrowth of this organization which did much to mould the moral character of the young people who made up the majority of its membership. Pupils of the high school were greatly helped by serving on committees, and, as officers, were educated in parliamentary rules and usages.

The building of the hall made other organizations possible and five others were instituted, all of which tended to draw upon the membership of the Sons of Temperance, so that in 1918 they decided they could no longer afford to maintain the hall and it was given up. The furnishings were sold to the Knights of Pythias and $150 given to Freeland Holmes library for the purchase of books. The meetings were held in the chapel for a time and for the past few years at the homes of the members.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Flora R. Carpenter
vs.
The heirs and legal representative of Calvin F. Bonney, Mary E. Cousins and Moses S. Moulton

To the Supreme Judicial Court:

Flora R. Carpenter of Porter in said County, complains against the heirs and legal representative of Calvin F. Bonney, deceased, late of Cornish in the County of York in said State, Mary E. Cousins deceased, late of said Porter, and Moses S. Moulton, deceased, late of said Porter, and says:

1. That on the eighteenth day of May A. D. 1927 one Asa O. Pike and one Fred T. Ela, both of Fryeburg, in said County of Oxford, conveyed to your plaintiff by warranty deed duly recorded in Oxford County Western District Registry of Deeds, in book 120, page 503, in fee simple, the following described real estate, situated in said town of Porter, together with the buildings thereon, viz: Bounded on the North by land of H. L. Ridlon; Easterly by Spectacle Pond and land of John H. Weeks; Southerly by land of William Chapman and son, land of the late N. T. Holmes, and land of Walter Mason; Westerly by land of Jacob French.

2. That said Asa O. Pike and Fred T. Ela, obtained their title to said real estate above described by deed from Martha A. Cousins dated August 17, 1925, and recorded in said Registry, book 120, page 62, and said Martha A. Cousins obtained her title to said above described real estate, one-half by deed from Eben Cousins to herself and Mary E. Cousins, dated September 23, 1899 and recorded in said Registry, book 87, page 165, and by deed from Mary E. Cousins dated January 4th, 1913 and recorded in said Registry, book 106, page 482, and that throughout the ownership of the said Martha A. Cousins, Fred T. Ela and Asa O. Pike and your plaintiff successively, each has been and your plaintiff still is, in uninterrupted possesson of the land above described claiming an estate in fee simple therein.

3. That during the ownership of said parcel above described by the said Eben Cousins, he, the said Eben Cousins, encumbered the said property by four mortgage deeds, viz: (a) Mortgage from Eben Cousins to Calvin F. Bonney for $300, dated October 28, 1862 and recorded in said Registry, book 45, page 266; (b) mortgage from Eben Cousins to Calvin F. Bonney for $365.00, dated October 24th, 1870 and recorded in said Registry, book 56, page 127; (c) Mortgage from Eben Cousins to Mary E. Cousins for $400, dated March 21, 1879 and recorded in said Registry book 67, page 230; (d) Mortgage from Eben Cousins to Moses S. Moulton, for $348.61 dated June 14th, 1892 and recorded in said Registry, book 78, page 521.

4. That all of said mortgages as above set forth have been duly paid but have not been discharged of record, because of which a cloud is cast upon the title of your said plaintiff and proof of the payment of said mortgages cannot be made by your plaintiff without the production of evidence.

5. And your plaintiff on her oath further alleges that the said mortgagees, Calvin F. Bonney Mary E. Cousins and Moses S. Moulton, are long since deceased and their heirs or legal representatives are unknown and their whereabouts unascertained by your said plaintiff.

WHEREFORE the plaintiff prays

1. That it may be ADJUDGED and DECREED that said mortgages as above set forth be declared null and void and that your plaintiff's title in fee simple in and to said property may be declared free from the cloud occasioned by the records thereof and that duly certified copy of such decree be ordered recorded in the Oxford County Western District Registry of Deeds.

2. That the plaintiff may have such other and further relief as the nature of the case may require.

And whereas actual service cannot be made upon the defendants herein, may it please this Honorable Court to order notices of this suit to be posted in a conspicuous place on the land above described and published in a newspaper printed in said County of Oxford for three successive weeks and give such other notice as the nature of the case may require of the pendency of these proceedings, whereby all persons interested may have opportunity to appear before this Court and answer to this bill of complaint at the February Rules A. FLU is now Epidemic!

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far, is mild; and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub. Over 375,000 jars are now being produced daily.

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

1. AS A PREVENTIVE

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germ-infection.

2. IF A COLD STARTS

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks also acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks.

Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

Mitchell's Occasional Letter

Sage of Alton, N. H.

Mr. Hoover is surely a go-getter. Who ever thought of such a proceeding as turning over a battleship to a President-elect? However, the idea appeals to me. This is the greatest nation on the face of the earth. Why should we not elevate our chief executive, give him every opportunity to gain glory and wealth? The President of the U. S. A. ought to be, should be, the most glorified mortal on the globe.

People like show, pomp and glory. It can be easily imagined that Solomon's slaves felt pride, even when under the lash, in the mere fact of being such * all other slaves, being subject to lesser men than Solomon, were inferior. Cause for pride! Surely they had it.

Our water-works has furnished us with many problems. It is about forty years old, and you know what that means. Pipes leak and give out; street-boxes get covered and the location forgotten; leaks occur and must be repaired.

Do you practice deep breathing in the open air? It is good for one. Every morning go out in the open and inhale as much air as you possibly can, hold it while you count twenty, then exhale slowly. Repeat this several times. Do the same exercise two or three times daily and again just before you retire. It will rejuvenate you. A Chinese explained this to me in New York many years ago. He was a tenant and I saw him doing it, asked him about it and he told me that all Chinese practiced it; said one could so train himself that he could do more work, with less sleep and a smaller amount of food than one who did not so breathe. Try it.

"Life is a trivial dream which fades away," said Napoleon. But what a glorious dream! Anticipation, dreams—they are more beautiful than any reality; and the poorest mortal can have them.

Our Governor Spaulding and Governor-elect Tobey do not agree about road building. Spaulding says the automobiles use the roads and should pay for them. Tobey says the State and Government should pay. I think Spaulding is right. For instance, an elderly woman has been paying for road-building for forty-five years and has never owned a horse or an automobile; a cow-path would serve her purpose. And she is property-poor. Another man has five automobiles and trucks, is on the road day and night and has less taxable realty than the woman. Is it equitable to tax the woman for the roads that the man uses?

It is easy to propose that Government should do this and that. But how is the cost paid? Who pays it? "Don't worry about that," says the impractical enthusiast. "You can bet your bottom dollar that your Uncle Sam is able to pay the expenses of anything he goes into."

But expense was never eliminated by shifting it from one place to another. And the final resting place of all government expenses is on the backs of those who labor. The banker, the manufacturer and the middleman can shift the burden to the next in line, but the worker PAYS, he simply has to.

It's a big problem. Can you solve it?
—F. E. Mitchell.

Mitchell's Occasional Letter

Sage of Alton, N. H.

Mr. Hoover is surely a go-getter. Who ever thought of such a proceeding as turning over a battleship to a President-elect? However, the idea appeals to me. This is the greatest nation on the face of the earth. Why should we not elevate our chief executive, give him every opportunity to gain glory and wealth? The President of the U. S. A. ought to be, should be, the most glorified mortal on the globe.

People like show, pomp and glory. It can be easily imagined that Solomon's slaves felt pride, even when under the lash, in the mere fact of being such * all other slaves, being subject to lesser men than Solomon, were inferior. Cause for pride! Surely they had it.

Our water-works has furnished us with many problems. It is about forty years old, and you know what that means. Pipes leak and give out; street-boxes get covered and the location forgotten; leaks occur and must be repaired.

Do you practice deep breathing in the open air? It is good for one. Every morning go out in the open and inhale as much air as you possibly can, hold it while you count twenty, then exhale slowly. Repeat this several times. Do the same exercise two or three times daily and again just before you retire. It will rejuvenate you. A Chinese explained this to me in New York many years ago. He was a tenant and I saw him doing it, asked him about it and he told me that all Chinese practiced it; said one could so train himself that he could do more work, with less sleep and a smaller amount of food than one who did not so breathe. Try it.

"Life is a trivial dream which fades away," said Napoleon. But what a glorious dream! Anticipation, dreams—they are more beautiful than any reality; and the poorest mortal can have them.

Our Governor Spaulding and Governor-elect Tobey do not agree about road building. Spaulding says the automobiles use the roads and should pay for them. Tobey says the State and Government should pay. I think Spaulding is right. For instance, an elderly woman has been paying for road-building for forty-five years and has never owned a horse or an automobile; a cow-path would serve her purpose. And she is property-poor. Another man has five automobiles and trucks, is on the road day and night and has less taxable realty than the woman. Is it equitable to tax the woman for the roads that the man uses?

It is easy to propose that Government should do this and that. But how is the cost paid? Who pays it? "Don't worry about that," says the impractical enthusiast. "You can bet your bottom dollar that your Uncle Sam is able to pay the expenses of anything he goes into."

But expense was never eliminated by shifting it from one place to another. And the final resting place of all government expenses is on the backs of those who labor. The banker, the manufacturer and the middleman can shift the burden to the next in line, but the worker PAYS, he simply has to.

It's a big problem. Can you solve it?

—F. E. Mitchell.

NOT GIVEN THOUGHT

Advertising is a vital sales force, upon which many hard headed business men spend millions of dollars annually as an investment. Too often in smaller communities advertising is looked upon lightly, or with indifference and as an expense, mainly because the business men have not made a study of that phase of merchandising. For the greatest success, all phases of merchandising should be studied thoroughly. If the proprietor himself, feels that he cannot devote the little time to the subject that is necessary, he should designate some one of his employees for the job—someone who would take an interest in the subject, who would try to gain a comprehensive idea of advertising, and who would try to make each successive advertisement more interesting andd enticing and who would get a thrill out of watching the way the public responded to his various advertisements.

The local paper is conceded to be one of the best advertising mediums, because of its greater interest, and is used strictly as a good business proposition by many national advertisers.

In many of the smaller papers throughout the country there are more advertisements of national concerns than there are of local business houses. The principal reason for this in undoubtedly because the local business men have not given the thought to advertising that the subject deserves.

BUSINESS LIKE A SHIP

A business is like a steamship. It takes a large force of men to operate it. To keep the boat going, the captain requires the assistance of many people who have a single purpose, a desire to do the right thing and the best thing in order that the ship shall move steadily, surely and safely on her course.

Curiously enough there are men constantly falling overboard. Those individuals who fall off, and cling to floating spars, or are picked up by passing craft, usually declare that they were "discharged." They say the Captain or the Mate, or their comrades had it in for them.

When a man quits his work, say, of oiling the engine or scrubbing the deck, and leans over the side calling to outsiders, explaining what a bum boat he is on, how bad the food is, and what a fool there is for a Captain, he gradually loosens his hold until he falls into the briney deep. He is standing on a greased plank that inclines toward the sea. And the plank is tilted in this way: the man takes more interest in passing craft and what is going on on land than in doing this work on board ship.

So, no man employed by a successful concern was ever discharged. Those who fall overboard get on the greased plank and then give it a tilt to the starboard.

Loyalty is the thing.

INVESTING MONEY WISELY

Statistics show that the many millions of dollars invested each year in worthless securities come largely from small investors, persons who are least able to lose their earnings to fraudulent concerns. There is constant need of warning the unitiated in investments.

The best advice any person can follow when he has been asked to invest in something of which he has little or no knowledge is to take the proposition to a banker or responsible broker, who will be able to advise promptly as to the probable value of the investment.

The banker may advise that the money be left in the bank rather than put into something which, the solicitor assures, will yield a large income, but which may be worthless, and the broker may suggest investment in some well known stock which he is able to sell, but in either case the savings of the individual would have some assurance of safety.

The first inquiry of the person with a little money should be not how much it will yield, on paper, but how safe will the investment be. The person who succumbs to the promise of dividend returns out of keeping with good business principles should ask the court for a guardian, is he safe to be trusted with money?

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

"Did you ever stop to think how utterly helpless and useless one would be, if he could be, independent of fellow men, the people that live in a community? Each individual is but a part of a large number of persons making up a community, each and all having common interests in, common duties and common responsibilities for the many human problems the community has to solve and care for all of the time.

"Then the person who attempts to live in a community, getting out of it what he can and contributing nothing to it, is a parasite. Such a person is selfish and selfishness is the mother of failure.

"Unselfishness, giving time and money to community problems, brings rich reward in self-happiness and self-growth.

"The sum total of human happiness is measured by the degree of helpfulness and unselfishness of the members, individually and collectively, of our community, our state, our nation.

"Did you ever stop to think that you cannot enjoy success in a community unless the community enjoys success? Others must be successful before you can expect to individually succeed. Do you ever ask yourself, "What am I doing to make the community in which I live a better place for my family and my fellow men?"

Selling Town Farm Timber

Story of a Sale in a Nearby Town Many Years Ago, by B. F. Elwell of West Paris

It was many years ago I engaged with the selectmen of Poland to run the new farm called the Miles farm. The selectmen were Virgil Waterhouse, A. E. True and Downing. The buildings had burned on the old farm and at the town meeting the citizens supposed they had voted to sell the farm, but Zenas Lane, the clerk and treasurer, had it recorded on the book to sell the timber and they hired me to run the new farm, and they would call a special meeting and sell the old farm.

After I had become settled on the new farm, the board came over to see me one day and in the course of conversation I inquired what price they were going to put on the old place. They said, "One thousand four hundred dollars," I told them it was not enough and that I could sell the pine for more than that; they asked how I would negotiate such a sale and I told them by auction, advertise early so that buyers could cut the timber the next fall and winter and clear the lot.

I said I would show prospective buyers the pine, would get in touch with men who were in the business and so the matter was arranged. I carried out my part of the program and men soon began to come. I took especial pains to see that they saw it all.

When the day of the auction arrived, we had a large crowd. Luther Perkins, George Goodwin of West Poland, Frank Andrews of Norway, Albert Gray, agent for the Portland Match Company, were among those present. The bidding was spirited but after a little all dropped out except Gray and Luther Perkins and got to $1,400 and then $100 bids until Gray dropped out and it was knocked down to Perkins a $1,405.00. Luther then said to Gray, "Now Albert I don't want that pine and if you will give me a chance to draw some of it, you may have it at my bid." Gray replied, "All right."

The Match Co. got six hundred and five thousand feet and the town got one thousand four hundred and five dollars with the farm left and oceans of red oak and hard wood of all kinds.

Mrs. Ellen M. Curtis

After two years of failing health and a few days of critical illness, Mrs. Ellen M. Curtis died at her home on Gothic Street, Tuesday afternoon, January 8th.

She was the mother of ten children of whom five are living, Gertrude Twitchell, Dora Tyler, O. E. Curtis of Kennebunk, Roy Curtis of Winthrop and Vernon A. Curtis of Waterville.

Bob Cat Visits South Paris Village

A large bob cat was seen near Conant Bros. Co. canning factory early Thursday morning and the visitor was chased to a point behind the County Buildings where the animal disappeared in the woods.

The cat was observed crouching under the street light by a night operator who was on his way home from work after midnight. He procured a revolver at the station and fired two shots without hitting the mark. Night officer Guy Swett was attracted to the locality by the shooting and in company with Wilbur C. Gammon and the operator followed the trail across Skilling's Avenue to a point beyond the court house. The cat let out several screeches before disappearing in the direction of Norway.

The animal is said to be twice the size of a large tom cat with foot prints three inches wide.

PROHIBITION ANNIVERSARY

The ninth birthday of National Constitutional Prohibition falls on Wednesday, Jan. 16th, 1929; and the W. C. T. U. in every one of the 10,000 towns where there is a local union in the nation will celebrate this event. The local unions in every county in Maine are adopting the program issued by the fifty-fourth annual convention at the National W. C. T. U. in the recent Boston Convention.

Pastors will be requested to preach anniversary sermons on the preceding Sunday, January 13th. The Wednesday observance will include luncheons, mass meetings or banquets. In some cases the topic will be the subject for the evening prayer meeting, which may occur on that evening.

Prohibition is advancing. It has just recorded a notable victory. Jan. 1 will be a day for education of the ge public as to the benefits of Prohi and the patriotism of law observa
